

IN THE BEGINNING OF THE INDIANS

There were just Indians in the United States. They were living the Happy people. But few different tribe Indian fought a little. They were have nothing, but happy people. One day an old Indian got sick. He start talking, he was black. out, this man is going crazy and they tied him and lie him down. And finally he was all quiet, his kinfolks was using Indian medicine on him to get him well. But he was out many days, many people came around and looked at him. And finally fourth day he wake up. There was nothing wrong with him and he sit down under a tree and they come all around him and he said here what our guiding man told me. He took me away with him, he showed me a lot of things he said first they a white people was coming and he showed me a black people, he showed me they was war not like today, this was I seen they was fighting in the air, which was airplane and they was fighting on water and in water which was submarine and ship and there was a big thing shaking the ground I seen em going round the hills had a smoke coming out, which was train, and I seen a road was made of rock, which is was highway and there was something got four feet running real fast which was automobile and I seen something big round thing way up in the air which it went in blue skies, they were looking for new world, which was rocket and they had a tall cities high way across cities which is we have now. And they was a time you cannot kill buffaloes or deer if any one kill they will lock em rock house which was jail. No fresh meat - lot of Indians will eat cold meat. There was sickness which we call frozen food and there was many things going fast and the whole wide world begins to turn fast the faster the thing go it was turning fast.

One man said I told you all this man is crazy. One man said leave him alone he is telling something ahead so we must be prepared and again the man said he is crazy no body didn't come and take him away. He was laying here four five days and he said leave him alone a guiding man he will guide us from all evil thing he.
