

MORE ABOUT WHITE OAK COUNTRY

(Well, how many business places were there besides your father's store?)

Well, they tell me there was another store there. And dad had --let a man run a barber shop in back of it. Then there was a little yard here and a blacksmith shop. And this looks like might be a blacksmith shop.

(This area sure has changed since then.)

Now this is a picture of my dad. I presume when he first come here 'cause he's sixteen. Some of my kinfolks had a little tent right down in there. You know they made a picture off of it.

(Well, isn't that nice.)

Uh-huh. They did a good job.

(This picture here is of New White Oak when they moved.)

When they first up here.

(Moved up here quarter of a mile.)

The whole corner was new then.

(Yeah.)

--
(I see. This is looking up the street here now. And this is its depot here.)

They had just built that depot. See this horse and buggy?

(Yeah.)

Now I'm pretty sure that's old Grayson Woods 'cause he used to drive it.

This is Haynes first store. Wasn't even painted.

(What was this building here?)

That was the store building.

(Store building and then little building in between?)

There was a barber shop in between.

(Yeah. And then the hotel.)

And my dad run a store there awhile and sold it out. He built this where Mr. Haynes store is now. 'Course Mr. Haynes is not there now. I showed you
