

(Yeah, the name is still down in there among some families. Now, the Tecumsehs. Are they an old family up in here, too?)

Well. That's the only one right there.

(And the Tigers. Were any of them over in this part of the country?)

Tigers. Used to be some Tigers live up there. But they, I think, I think it's granddaughters or ancestors. I don't know.

(Yeah. Find several of 'em down around Okmulgee.)

I think that's a different bunch, if I'm not mistaken. Used to be a bunch of 'em down in this neighborhood, but they're all--Well, this younger generation, they just disappear, you know. And so, I don't know, they-- /static/. I can't recall back in those days when they used to have a ferry boat. All I can remember is when back in 1910. That's when I was born. From there on out, I just barely remember some of 'em. Used to live around in that neighborhood. So, ever since then, I just get in there--used to work for Jack Colvert down at Yahola. I heard John Fever, he passed away day before yesterday, I believe it was. Down here at Haskell. I saw that in the paper. John Gilbert, he used to go by that name. I was wanting to go to the funeral, but I didn't know how they was going to do it.

(Yeah.)

I went to his boy's funeral out there at Fort Gibson. But I didn't know where they had his body or anything. I was just over at my nephew's. I thought that's where they was going the church house.

Instead of that, he took me right straight out to the cemetery. I didn't even view the body on account of it was raining. So we came on back.

CEMETERIES

(What cemetery did the Indians use for your community here?)

Well, they had several of 'em. There is Tecumseh. They had one down at the foot of the hill back in there.

(Yeah.)
