

we have some living in Nebraska and some in Oklahoma. And when the rest of folks that came here, well, they were, couse, they were allotted in such a way, you know. So, they can stay. They gave them land allotments to live on. They supplied them with things that were necessary. When they first came here why they had no facilities of any kind, no medical aid, medicine. Thousands of them died just by sickness, fever, the weather, they weren't acquainted with the weather, hot, humid, rainy. And half the tribe died of sickness. And from that, they moved from here, and after that they were supplied. After many years they were supplied medical aid and help and they issued them horses, farm machinery. Most of the Indians built their own homes cause they knew how to build houses. Some of them didn't so they had to live in tents.

INDIAN HOOP GAME

(Well, Albert, back then, did your parents did they ever tell you about what kind of recreation they had way back there? Tell about their hunting life, and things like that. They went hunting, but in the, say in the spare time that they had, did, what kind of recreation did, do you recall what they did?)

It was like any other tribe, you know. They have this wrestling. It was a main event of recreation, that is, the recreation of wrestling and foot races, you know, they used to tell us that they had, young man them days were very fast on their feet. At times, you know, whenever they run any kind. That is, they run down any animal on their feet, just chase them around till they get them exhausted. And that's how enjoyable they were at that time. The Indians naturally like to foot race. And they had a game. I don't know what they call it myself. But the game goes that one side, there are two side, one side stands across from the other and one side in on the other side. They're facing each other. And they'd roll a
