

(Because someone witchcraft him. Do you know what this (speaks Creek) is?

What is that? I've been asking about that. And how that name come in? Could you tell that? What that is?)

I never thought about that.

(I'd like to talk to someone you know that knows what that is. And then something like (speaks Creek).)

Yeah. (Speaks Creek.) is that elk that they talk about in fairy tales.

(Uh-hum.)

And I lived across the road a piece. And , well, something just bother the house and bother the house. And they used to have a fortune teller back and forth lived there, Hickory ground, somewhere. And my brother brought him there and said that was that (speaks Creek) around there and for us to move. And that's how come we to move. And old man liked to died with it. And then we moved.

(What did they do? Did they bother some people?)

No, it said it take your breath and said they'd play with you.

(Oh.)

And then, I don't know why, the old man got really sick. And my brother brought that man. And said it was that and that bothering him. I thought he was going to go crazy for a while. They said if you stay around long enough you go crazy when them things around. But it was lots of trees around there. And then little old balls that comes off of trees was lots of them. And then, they said they live in those. I guess that's what it was and we moved. We moved from there to Eufaula. We stayed down there for a year.

(I wonder if they bother just certain people or just anybody?)

I guess it's anybody.

(That lives where they're at.)

Yeah.
