

PALEOINDIANS (ANCIENT INDIANS): The Paleoindians known as the Folsom people lived about 10,000 years ago in eastern New Mexico, eastern Colorado, and eastern Wyoming. They were big game hunters. One of their main animals hunted was a kind of giant buffalo. It resembled the buffalo of today, but was larger. The Folsom people probably used spears or spear-like darts to bring down these animals. The bow and arrow was not invented for thousands of years. We do not know how the Folsom people dressed or what kind of houses they might have had.
