

place east of Yale. You know they have two mounds right there. That's supposed to be the corner, the way I hear it. There is a river right there too. Well, there are different stories like I say. Two surveyors got these rivers mixed up. That two mounds right west of Yale, about seven miles west of Yale and straight north. But we did lose some land over that way. Not much we can do about it now is there? But that is what we should have had.)

Yeah.

(They kinda let those people--notice we have a book here. These Kiowas and Comanches and Cheyennes and Arapahoes, all of them, when they made this treaty out here--Medicine Lodge, you know, 1867, I believe about them Indian here. These Osages they was already in that Medicine Lodge with these white guys, you know. They wanted to see how they was feeding these Indians down there you know. I don't know who all it was, but they said there was a group of Osages there at Medicine Lodge when they made this treaty, with the tribes down there. That's before we negotiated for this here. We were in the process of buying this place up here.

I had a book that told about that. I loan it to Quinton.

(Quinton?)

Yeah, Ish--

(Ishmael?)

Yeah. This book tell about that. Comanche, Kiowas, Osage, something about all that. I read it (sentence it clear). He never did bring it back.

(Call him up and tell him to bring it back. Tell him you didn't give it to him, you just loaned to him.)

There was a man in 1896, I believe it was. Old Man Wah-hre-she, told me one time about this. Five Civilized Tribes among the Osages. The Osages get up there with 'em. So they agreed to do that. And he said they go up there (not clear). Don't want white man! So head man was going to talk. So they went to meet. They talk all day. Before they started good that man died. And
