

(Well, where was the old Eagle home?)

The old Eagle home was--(static)--the old Eagle home.

(Where was the church in those early days there, where you also went to the church with the rest of them?)

Oh, at Penny's, right there, yeah.

(Yeah, right there at Penny's.)

The place is a school house, you know, and finally they built a church.

(About how old was she when she died?)

Well, I just don't know. I couldn't guess.

(She was an old woman, though.)

Yes, an old woman.

(She probably didn't know how old she was either.)

No.

(So many of them are like that.)

(Well, was it true that she could just speak Indian? She couldn't speak English?)

I think she spoke the Cherokee and English too.

(Oh, she could speak both languages?)

Yeah. I know that we, she was cleaning the hog and so forth, she would be down there on the bank cleaning and helping put them and she'd say, "Ketch him! Ketch him! Ketch him! Ketch him!" He was floating off you know.

(Well.)

She holler Ketch him! Ketch him! Ketch him!

(Ketch him.)

(Yeah, get a bunch of those hog entrails down the creek. Where you'd have quite a time getting them all gathered up.)
