

day, he said, oh, he said, "I would drive." But, he said, "I've got this car and a pick-up," he said, "I just don't want so many old cars sitting around my place."

(That's right.)

(And he...(tape skip)...

MORE ABOUT SOUTHWEST CITY - TOUGH AT TIMES

(You've known Southwest City a long time, I guess.)

Oh yes. We used to come in a wagon up here and get groceried, you know. My folks did.

(Well)

Then we'd come in a wagon even after Jimmy and I were married. We started in 1918.

(Yeah. Well, they didn't have any towns like Grove and Jay in those days, did they?)

Well. They're old, but then Grove wasn't as old at that time as--This is just an old town up here and I think that's why most people liked to come.

(I guess that's why.)

And lower prices. You could get things cheaper.

('Course they had a railroad here too. That helped a whole lot.)

Yes--

(--Southwest City here)

Oh yeah. They used to come up here and get drunk...

(Well)

Come horseback and then they'd go home just drunk and have their guns and--Up on this road here somewheres, let's see Jimmy's uncle, Bill Butler.

(Yeah.)

He killed Jimmy's mother's brother. I forgot his name.

(Well)
