

Well, at times it does, but if you just set down and set your mind to it the words will come to you.

(Your mother spoke Peoria didn't she?)

Yes, but she spoke Shawnee to us all the time.

(I know that some of these words like they end in 'qua', now that sounds a little like Peoria to me.)

Yes. Uh-huh.

(Qua--)

Yes it does.

(Iriquois and-- Well, thank you very much Janie.)

Thank you.

(I got her on tape, wasn't that good? (Background noise) We are sorry about the background noise. This was taken on the 5th of January 1970. And at the same time the language class was trying to go on. There was a birthday party in progress. One of the students had had a birthday and they'd come in with a surprise supper for her. And, as you heard, there were children. But, this was the only time I could Janie Logan on tape, and so I risked the background noise.)

(End of Interview.)
