

(Were they Arapaho?)

Arapaho. They said they were all sisters. Three sisters he married.

(Do you know whether they were full sisters or not?)

No. That far back I don't know.

(Now how about Henry. Was he older than your husband?)

Yeah, he was older.

(Was he older than Esther?)

No. Younger..

(What about Dick--was he older than your husband?)

Yeah, he was older than Henry and younger than Esther.

(Well, was your father-in-law married to these women at the same time?)

Yeah. I guess they all were.

(Was that when they had more than one wife?)

Yeah.

(How did Dick get the name of Bird's Head?)

Well, that's his father.

(That's right. But Henry--did he take the name or Lincoln or was he given that name in school or--?)

In school. Both him and my husband. Maybe they looked something like Abraham Lincoln.

(You know, talking about half-brothers and sisters--would you use this term, na'ehaebaehae' -- would you use this for a half-brother, too?)

Yeah, same was for half-brother or half-sister.

(Was there any other term they would use for a half-brother or half-sister that was any different?)

No.

(What about Dick Bird's Head--does he have any children?)
