

what you start doing getting ready for the next year in the committees, the works the meetings. How are these things done?) We have box supper, few bingo games, and I believe that's about all they have, just. . . .

(What kind of organization do you have to have to run the thing?) Oh, they have a club, men's have a big club too, and they all get together and collect together to buy they call beef to feed the registers. Beef is so high now. We used to do well to get a lot of groceries like some are these, are there various responsibilities on these committees that are assigned to each individual, each group to do certain things?)

Well there is, there's a lot of responsibility. There has to be in order to keep this pow-wow in order. If we didn't, we wouldn't get the first base.

(What are some of those groups and could you tell me what they are before the pow-wow during the year when you're getting ready for it; and the group that runs it, who they are, and how they run it not by name but by identification that your head singers and drummers. . . .)

Yes, we have head singers, head dancers, the committee selects them. First part of the year we start looking around for a head singer, head dancer, then they have to look out for area directors. They only get to see one every year. We kinda alternate them around.

(What do the area directors do, what is his responsibility?) They're assigned to get seats and ways of vacancy.

(They assigned the dancers to the places?)

Yes.

(Do the women usually, do the women's committee usually take care of all the cooking?)

Oh, yes, they do all that part, if they didn't we wouldn't do good on that part.

(Well, you have Indian committee for the men. What kind of officers do you have? Do you have a chairman or President or something?)

Yes. Chairman, vice, secretary, treasurer, they all meet once a month, they play them bingo's. They usually make a little money not much, they still carry on.
