

LIFE HISTORY MATERIAL: GUY A. FAVORED CHILD

(After you, who was next?)

I was the oldest. My mother had me when she was a young girl--about fifteen years old when she married. And I was the first child. That's the reason I became one of those 'w<sup>o</sup> de.tali. (favored child). Almost the same as a prince. I wear all buckskin clothes and ivory breastplate and everything the 'w<sup>o</sup> de.tali. uses. I had ponies of my own and everything, and people give me gifts for presents. When people want something they have to give me a gift. Then my folks have to get it for them. I'm the oldest, and then next to me would be Maggie. Maggie Toyebo. There was a boy next, but he's dead now. Varner. Then Gina--a girl. G-I-N-A. Gina Ware. Then Lillie. And Bill--a boy--William Quoetone. Bill's the baby. And these are all my full brothers and sisters. That's all.

GENEALOGICAL MATERIAL

(Then what about the children of you father and Baco?)

May was the oldest, a girl. May Yeahquo. She's like George--she's my half (sibling). Then Horace. And Fred, another boy. Carrie. Sarah. Sarah is the baby. That's all of them.

(Can you tell me any more about Baco's father, gu<sup>o</sup> koyi? Do you know his father or his mother?)

No. He was a pretty old man. He's legal married to-- he married another woman--you heard of Clyde Coco? Clyde Coco's mother. Clyde was their oldest son.

(Would you, in the Indian way, would Clyde be related to you?)

I call him "uncle". Because Baco was my aunt and it was his sister so I call him uncle.

(So gu<sup>o</sup> koyi is the father of Clyde Coco?)
