

No--Abel's father. Big Bow. Old Man Big Bow. Big Bow was a fine looking man so she just claimed him as her boy friend. She tell everybody that Big Bow is her boy friend.

(In this fight, did anybody get hurt?)

No. It was just hand fighting. Different men run up there and separated them. And they knew that Pea-dah couldn't defend himself, that he was just a child, and child-minded.. They wouldn't let Takone beat him up. They took him away. And sent him to another home where he could live peacefully.

COMMENTS ON DRAWING NO. 98

(Let's see what this next one is (Drawing No. 98)--I don't know--it looks-- what that could be--)

It was the winter. You know what this is--I think it's World War I--enlisting soldiers.

(Well, I think this would be before World War I, because if we're going back from 1911, that would be about 1909 down here--)

Yeah, but I don't think he had anything between that, because he'd got those army caps on (referring to drawing No. 98 which is of two men with caps on).

Two men. Then it's got--This was in 1911 when Quanah Parker died. And this would be 1912--

(No, it goes the other way. This would be twelve this way, and this would be 1910 and this would be 1909 and 1908, going backward (from right to left).

I was trying to make out what the writing says--)

COMMENTS ON DRAWING NO 97, PAYMENT AT MOUNT SCOTT

He's not got these years rotated the way they ought to come. That what makes it hard. Well, he's got the payment at Mount Scott over here (Drawing no. 97). That happened in nineteen hundred and eight. He's got them mixed up--he don't have them rotated year after year like they ought to. He just makes recording. That's the reason he's got these popular ones. Then this between what
