

Oh, I don't drive. Tired driving. I burned out. When my husband was living, since 1923, we bought us a car, and we had a car ever since. And I was just burned out, I don't care to drive.

(Have there been many Wichitas that have gone on relocation?) There have been, but I don't remember who. I know my grandson did, and there's...I know another one went, and he quit. He was drinking, I guess, and he quit. But we got one boy, I always say, he's a good boy...Martha Reader, he lives across from me. It's her boy, her oldest boy...well, she has two boy, this is the oldest. And he's got two sisters that older than him. Full sisters, she was married before...their father died, and then she married again, she had three more. But anyway, this boy, he's the best boy. He's been in the service, he got out and he went back in another year or two and it expired. And he went to Cameron College when it was a junior college, and he finished over there. And then he went to Weatherford last year. And he's trying to finish...summer school, he went to, every day. He's really a nice boy. He's in his twenties now... maybe thirty. He don't drink, he don't have bad habits. And some times Martha would come after me and I would be over there and he'd come home. I'd stay overnight with them. After breakfast, he'd clean up like a girl, all the rooms.

And she said, if there are any dishes, he'll wash them. But his half-sister, that youngest one, she's the baby of the family. Oh, she was just spoiled you know. And he used to get after her sometime. She was just scared to death of him, you know. She went to California, with a bunch of girls...I don't know whether it's something about that relocation. Somebody took a bunch of girls out there, and they worked. And it was just like government schools, they maked their beds, you know. Maybe that's what....And then she came home...she never did go nowhere. That's the first time. Their father was my first cousin. He's dead now. Anyway, she told me, she said I'm just surprised at Carla Ray, the way she's going. Never did go out. She wouldn't even go to town by herself. I had to go along with her. And she said, you know what she told me the other day. She wants to go to school. Chilocco, government school.
