

keep house?)

Yeah.

(Well, would you give that to just any young person--give them advice-- or do you do it just because she's related to you and you have a special feeling for them?)

I wouldn't do that to anybody--I don't care how they live. Just so it's none of my relations!

(Alonzo's wife--Margaret--she's not from Wyoming, is she?)

No. She's from here. She's Cheyenne. Cheyenne squaw. (Changing the subject)

Oh, yesterday I heard my granddaughter got her baby. You know she suffered all week they said, and they took it out over there and she had a nine pound boy. They said she's home. They told me that. She had it at General Hospital at Clinton. They moved her over there. And that's where they said she's got a baby.

(Is she doing o.k. now?)

I guess she is. I just heard it yesterday. And it just tickled my heart. That's Rosie Jean--her first one.

(That's another great-grandchild. But you'd still call him nEsia?)

Yeah, nEsia. I'm going to make an effort some way to go see her. She lives at Seiling. Maybe I could go next Sunday.

RECREATION: PLAYING POKER

(Are they still playing poker over at Madiline's house?)

Oh, yes, they do! And I just hate to go because I don't have no money. And nobody gives me money.

(How much do you need to play for an afternoon?)

About five dollars. It takes money. Some of them, they play about thirty
