

She went over and it was that snake! "Ah!" she said, "That was you all's Grandpa! Didn't you all know it? He was my husband!" she said. "And you all kill him now! My goodness, that's how come I say that! You all don't mind. Two of you all! If there was just one, that wouldn't have happened! What for did you all kill him? He was my husband!" she said. (Evelyn laughs)

FIFTH SEGMENT: TWIN BOYS VISIT AN OLD MAN WHO TRIES TO KILL THEM, BUT WHO KILLS HIMSELF ACCIDENTALLY INSTEAD

He hadn't finished that last one. After they kill that snake. And then she told them, "All right, I always warned you boys about everything. Now, you all done killed my husband." she said. Now, there is just one more thing. There is a tipi way down there. You all mustn't go in the back of that- where ever the wind blows. Don't go in the back of it. That's man is bad. He always kill people." So they were curious about that, too. So one day they went. They sneak up to that tent and the peek in and that man was sitting in there. He said, "Wey, you all come in." So when they went in, he said, "What you all doing? What you all want?" And they say, "Oh, we just playing around." So he said, "All right, since you come just in-you all see them four bags up there, hanging up? I want you all to untie them." So one of them little boys got up and untied that first one, you know. He put it in that fire. He told them to put it in that fire. And boy, smoke come up, you know. And the next one, the other one, he done the same thing. There was nothing but smoke was coming out. He was after them boys, you know. He was after them boys, you know. He was gonna catch them boys. He eat them, I guess, that old man, you know. So they did all them bags they and it really got smok-ey in there. They were sitting together, them brothers, and that little boy
