

And this man that was dancing went by there, you know, and stuck his hand in there. Pulled out a strand of dry meat out of there. He give it to some chief, I don't know, one of them chiefs.

(Yeah.)

He's going to eat it, you know. He says, "That's where I got scared." He says, "That war dance is a powerful dance."

(Yeah.) /

I don't know. Well, I don't know too much about them, but they use it as regular ceremony, you know, when they dance, when they dance. They mean business.

(Yeah.)

Just like them Apaches.

(Yeah, yeah.)

I don't know about these others, you know. I don't know too much about them, you know. I don't how they doing, you know. They --

(Yeah.)

This, well, pow-wow, well, these others, you know. I don't know too much about them, you know. I don't how they doing, you know. They --

(Yeah.)

This, well, pow-wow, well these -- "Well," he says, "that's where I got scared." But still, you know, he said. He's going to try to use it, you know. But the way he done, you know, he -- he put on a big feast whenever he dances that, you know. Put on big feast, you know, he feeds people, you know.

(Yeah.)

That's the way he used to do it.

(Yeah.)

Well, he was able, you know. He could do it. You know, he bought, maybe,
