think they needed anything else. That was life for them. But I went to school rather late. I must have been, and as I said, I lett school in 1900 and I was 132 years old when I left here. And I went to school. I must have been about 7 or ĉ. I don't remember. And I came here this was a Kiowa school. It was mission run by the Southern Methodist Churth, --- missionaries. And this J.J. Methylns and this church down there is named after him. And we went to school me and another friend of mine. And we went but they was all different but they was Kiowas. And just us two Comanches. We didn't know nothing --- we didn't know "a" from "b": when they say "yes" or "no" we din't know what that was. There we were-- Zowed up suckers, but it was our last year for our'll; er'brothers. Their last year so the parents seen it to let us to and flet them kinds help us along that limst year of our school life. They's come over and clothe us. We cidn't know how so put dresses on, or shoes. Course we had shoes at home, but it was different from what they had here. We had to so by regulations. So they'd help us along quite a bit. (Well, What did these things (clothes) look like that your wore?) Oh, just little slips just like butter lies you know. And mother she never went to school in her life, but I always wore dresses. It's just a plain long waisted dress and gathered, you know, and that was all. They had aprons and pinafores and things like that. Well, we affan't know nothing about them. So we came there to that school. Oh, that was said old day we same there. Oh I won't wenne go. I just cried and holleged, "I wanne so home to my parents." And they say I'll have to stry. Say, "Your Erothers is here and hell look ther tou." They called us in there, and that light took as into that buildings she took as into a room and there's alot of clothes, shells around there, you know. Ind she was trying to lit us up you know. She put jus on smock dresses flike this you know, -- inded. Got dressed and cleaned. Then she wook us across compus. Quite a ways from our building to the laundry and she put us in a tub of water. Cleaned both of us you know. Bathed us and put clothes on us. She showed us how to put our shoes and stockings on. What! Why in those days we nursed when we was 5 or 6 years old. And therefore we just babies and our mothers, we don't know nothing about lacing our shoes up, putting on our own stock-
