

can't put up with me." That's what that lady told him. And he said, "No, let's get married." So they started holding hands with one another. And they went so far and when they came upon this big cliff there was a lot of water there. And it's a whirlwind (the woman is the whirlwind.) I guess she fling him in that water. And he sure got mad! He was all soaking wet! He come out from on that bank, and he said, "zapodl." Now you know what "zapodl" means--You know Kiowas use it to mean an "owl;" you know. I don't know why they say that but they always say that you know. Just like something. Like they say "zapodl-ki" and that means "owl man."

(Preceding statement is Evelyn's explanation.) So she took off, you know.

So he came to this place, you know, where--he crawled out on that bank, though. He started walking and he said, "Ah, I'll let her go," he said, "I'm going to keep on going." So when he got so far he heard people singing somewhere. And it's these prairie dogs, he said. That's where it end right there. (Now T-71 is run back so that Evelyn can listen to more and in listening again she remarks that the Whirlwind Woman called Sainday "Uncle." She said, "Uncle, what are you doing?")

He was walking and he came to this place where he heard these people singing. It was a bunch of these prairie dogs. It was a prairie dog town. And he come up and he said that they were having a dance. So he was limping around there, and all he had on his mind was how he was going to get to them to kill them, and eat them. He still wasn't satisfied with what he ate, you know. So he said, "All right, I going to dance with you all." So they said, "Hey, uncle, what you doing? What you walking around for?" And he said, "Ah, I'm just moseying along." He said, "Good! I come to your all's dance. I'm going to dance with you all." But I'm going to tell you all, you all close your eyes." He said, "When you all close you all's eyes, everybody
