

in and then they were put to bed. Because that was the only system they had then. That was before promine and these other drugs came in. Of course they use an altogether different system now where they collapse the lungs and so on like that now. Altogether different.

(Well, when you were delivering these babies did you ever have any trouble with any of the deliveries?)

I was fortunate not to. After I delivered these babies then I usually went and made a report on it.

(Where would you go to make this report?)

I always had one doctor that I worked with.

(Was he a white doctor?)

Yes, Dr. Anderson. He was our family doctor.

(He was your own family doctor?)

Yes uhuh.

(Did you ever work for a doctor at the public health or for the agency?)

I worked with the nurses. Field work. Where we went from home to home.

(Did they pay you for doing this?)

Oh yes, uhuh.

(Did the people pay you too after you delivered their babies?)

Yes uhuh.

(How much money would they give for delivering the baby, or would they give you money for it?)

Oh yes, they gave me money.

(How much did you get paid for it?)

Well see on the average of 35 dollars a week if you took care of them, to any length of time but I always worked for them for the first 9 days or 10 days.
