

do not read at all.

(Do you think there are more people today that don't speak Caddo then in the past?)

Yes, I think so.

(Do you think the number of people who speak Caddo is declining or increasing?)

It's increasing. More or less. Well take my generation up to well say those are around 40 to 60, they all speak it.

(Are there any other jobs that you had that we haven't mentioned?)

Well, uh, that is home demonstration classes. I always would have had that vice presidency most of the time.

ARTS AND CRAFTS:

(You remember the other day you were telling me that you made these moccasins and arts and crafts?)

Yes.

(How did you get started doing that?)

Well, my mother taught me.

(Have you been doing that for along time?)

Oh, yes I have, but of course, I don't make them just you know any time.

When theres a special request as a shroud or something and then they come to me. I try to keep supplies on hand for that purpose.

(This is a shroud?)

Uhuh.

(That people put over coffins?)

Uhuh.

DEATH PRACTICES:

(Is there any special..well what do these shrouds look like?)
