

Well, (laughter)

(Yeah, what--were there any rules?)

Huh?

(Were there any rules about--about how you can hit it?)

Oh, there's--no, I don't think there's any rules, but they--only, you know, they--they told all of them not to, like, you know, you can pick that ball, you know.

(Yeah.)

Some man used to put that sticks in the way. You know, you can hit the ball, you know. They'll catch your stick, but they tell them not to do that, you know. When stop the ball, you know, get the ball, you know, not the stick.

(Yeah.)

Person that's trying to, you know, get the ball.

(Yeah, yeah.)

But some of them used to, you know, put the sticks in there, you know, just for purpose, (laughter) I guess, you know.

(Yeah.)

Not to let him hit the ball.

(Yeah. How about--how about fouls?)

What?

(Were there any fouls in a game, I mean, you know, like---)

No.

(What happened if you hit somebody with a stick?)

No, There wasn't no kind of foul.

(Could you hit somebody with a stick?)

No, they didn't--they didn't do that.
