

with you." (Next two sentences not intelligible.) When they got into that camp that dog was vicious looking. What's what he told Alice. He said, "If it hadn't been for that dog you'd have never caught me. Oh they had a lot of fun.

(Would married women chase the men too?)

Well, they can go after their brother-in-law or distant cousins. Anybody that are outsiders. Anybody that can dance.

(I don't think we've mentioned the next part of the dance. What happens after the women go and chase after the men?)

Well, then that's when that Little Osage comes in and they see if last part of the dance and then they go into that Little Osage. That's when they start dancing like you know. They dance behind the men and then at certain parts then they turn around and dance with them.

(I was noticing that. Am I right in remembering that the men turned around?)

Yes, that's what I mean. There's a certain that you turn. You dance forward and then at a certain part, you turn around and face the women. And when that part is over, then you turn back and dance forward.

(Is there any special way that the dance is supposed to end?)

Oh, yes. Uhuh.. There's certain step that they take toward the east and then that indicates that that's the end of the dance.

EXPLANATION FOR THE FIRST SEVEN SONGS:

(Well, what I'd like to do now for the time that we have left is to play some of these songs and get you to tell me what the song means and if it's used any particular and where it comes from and if then. I'd like to start off with the first song because you said that that was a special song so I'd like to record part of it.)
