

he did. He really did.

(He practiced it?)

He practiced it, yes.

LIVED WITH HIS GREAT GRAND-PARENTS WHEN A CHILD

(What relatives did he live with when he was a child?)

His great-grandmother and his mother.

(Did he ever visit any of his other relatives?)

He said, I was small and I can't recall in my younger years. The only thing I remember quite well is going to the Sundance with my great-grandmother.

(Did he play any games when he was a little boy?)

He said that I can not recall.

(Did he have any work he had to do?)

Oh, yes he said my father was a cattleman, he had a lot of cattle and he said when I was old enough I started helping him.

(What kind of work did he do?)

Oh, he plowed the ground, planted the corn, just about everything that was needed to be done around the house. Carrying water and helping his mother wash, planting watermelons, planting anything everything in the garden.

(Did he ever go to school?)

Mother and father didn't put me into school early because my great-grandmother didn't want for me to leave the home and when she died of old age in the year of 1889, my grandmother had died and that was the year they had put me in school.

STARTED TO SCHOOL AFTER THE GRANDPARENTS DIED

(Which school was it?)

At the old Kiowa School.
