

just roll him over it, and they went in there and got that bundle medicine down, and they spread it all over. They want see what's in there. But everything was there. So after all the..everybody's gone, there happened to be one fellow, he's shot one of them fellow. One of them fellows, you know. Happen to be he killed one of them big shot over there, sargent or something. He kill him. Right there, the whole shoot of them turned back run for their lives. Run away. Only one they looking for some..lot of Indians, dead. And well, they said..they looked and they was one woman, she was way over there by the creek somewhere.

(The weather became so bad at this point in the interview, that we moved to the car, and the story was repeated as follows..much of the original telling is inaudible and is not transcribed from this point on.)

(Inside the car: Louise, can you tell that story again. There was so much thunder and wind out there that I'm afraid I'm not going to be able to hear it.)

What this one? Well this bundle medicine, what I got now, course different from this medicine. The owner know what the rule.

(No, I meant the story about the fight, when the camp was attacked?)

Well it was in that big Apache camp. And here come an attack, them soldiers.

Oh, well it's this way. I just thought about it. There's ah, this man and a woman, they was out someplace, you know. They was kind of hiding around.

They didn't want nobody know that they together you know, and alright, and they stay way over there by the hill they looking on the other way and here come some people coming in..men. And he looked at it it was all the soldier men. They all came in. When they all come in..one place, they all stoppong, just like up. And when they got there everybody is ready for morning..that's when they attack the camp, morning..early in the morning.

And this woman, this fellow, he said, "Hey let's go back to our camp and
