

on till I was about eighteen, I got married..at Carnegie, Kiowa man. Yea, and finally later on I had some children. Course, we didn't have no home, then. We stayed with his folks. Finally, we got..he's got a home here, six miles east of Carnegie. We moved down there and sold my daddy's..half of his land, you know. I bought, team, wagon, harness, and furniture. And that was his house that was there. And we moved in there, living there. And he get out and work, pull broom corn. And I stay at home. Course I cook. Children then. He get out and work. Lots of work up there.

(What was his name?)

Hiram Hummingbird.

(When you arried him you decided to marry didn't you? That wasn't arranged kind of marriage.?)

Yea..I don't know. I kind didn't want to get married to him, you know. Cause he's a little oder than I you know. lAnd I didn't want to marry, but he so crazy about me. And finally he got me in notion and took care of me. Bought a registered hog from people over here and course I learn how to take care of chickens. Lots of chickens. And my lease man, he said I give you a great big milk cow. She's got a calf. DYou could sign up for three years, I give it them days, you know. So I did. And he give me a good milk cow. Bit red milk cow, got a calf. And that's when we raised bunch of cows, we been doing pretty good for a long time.

(Did Hiram do any farming?)

No. But he helped farm. Well, him and another fellow farm. But he
