

they sandals, and go out." They went out. ~~Wherever~~ they went there was wealth. He told them wherever they were not welcome not go any further. The people were punished in that house if they did not let them in. That's where the Indians got all their beliefs, in the Old Testament.

(Do they have very much from the New Testament? Do they feel that Jesus was the son of God?)

Uh huh. You know Indians knew even before Columbus came across. How did they know there was a great creator?

(How did they know?)

That's just what I want to know.

(How long has peyote been?)

Well, they worshiped in different forms. Just like I got through telling you, this sun dance is one of them. It's the main worship among the Arrapahoe people. There was one old man, he lived down in this land where Canton is situated now. He went three days and three nights without eating. That's how he gained his knowledge of different herbs, and knowledge through nature. The Indian had to suffer for it, but today the white man just tell one another how to do it. But the Indians found out for themselves. They asked questions. Therefore, they know what kind of herbs to use. Today just like I told you, the white men are hiding behind these bushy faces and they have to shave to get people to recognise them. They have to fast a certain length of time, three days and three nights. (The doctors) The third night the vision comes to them and tells them to use different things and how to help people, but the white man made fun of them things. And how come they are
