

But they was real small, little-bitty ones, feet tracks you know come out and go in and it had sand where you could see them go under that cave, you know, under them big, flat rocks. And then he was standing there on this big flat bank, he said the bank wasn't too high, and he was standing there looking down and pretty soon three little mens came from under that place, you know they come out and they had little bitty bows, bows and arrows, I wonder what they would kill with those little bows and arrows? So small as those arrows, it wouldn't kill a deer, it wouldn't kill nothing. Maybe they go to kill something to eat huh? Something else, besides...grasshoppers, they might eat something else. Of course they can't kill them with them little bows. And those little people were about this big (12") and they had long hair they got little faces and little feet, just like any other people you know but they were real small. And he was watching them and pretty soon they came out and they were talking. He couldn't understand what they were saying and I think one of them looked this way and saw him and run back under that bank. I guess they went way in there somewhere and he couldn't see them no more again. And he went back to where the camp was and he said, "Say I saw some little bitty peoples over here. Lets go see them. You all go with me." So these other men, they got on their horses and they went to that cave and they couldn't find nothin' there but there was tracks a lot of tracks come out of it. Maybe after they got scared they all got out and went some other place. Run off, you know, just run up those mountains and hide some place. And that's how come this man, you know, one of them said, "Let's go in there. I'm going to in there and see what's in there. If you say these little peoples went in there, they're bound to be in here." And he went in the
