

this two men's always coming, they all help out together. And they all got songs, medicine songs. And they say, this is what my father always tell me--you know, they're just singing them songs because it brings bad luck. I told you before. And they say they're so sacred that nobody can't sing them, just the ones that doctor buffalo. And there's seven songs that they singing. Oh, it's so nice, I wish you could be where they doctor them. My father doctor and oh, I like to listen to him doctor. They'll put up a tipi and they doctor in the tipi, not in the house, cause when I was born and when I was like ten years old, eight years, I knew. I remember I saw him doctor. But he can't doctor in a house, it have to be in a tipi. And then if you ain't got a tipi, he always say, "Put up a tent." Because he use that coal--wood coal, fire, you know, he use that. And he put his, they got cedar over here. There's a mountain right here, that's where--just short cedar, they use that for medicine. It smells kind of little different from this, you know, Christmas trees, cedar trees. And he dries them and then he use them to smoke, smoke them medicines. I saw him. He smoke them in the cedar smoke good and then he kind of work on this person. They use herbs. He makes tea and gives it to the sick. I saw him. And then pneumonia right here, and then some people that were pretty near dead--and you know pneumonia is a bad sickness. You die with pneumonia, too. There was no doctors in those days, no hospitals, so they have to do something.

STORY ABOUT CURING BOB GOOMBI OF PNEUMONIA

One time I saw him. They came after him and there was a young boy had pneumonia--double pneumonia and they said he was about to die. And they came after my dad. He couldn't hardly breathe. You know
