

many years ago, he understand that. When they know the feet stick out and goes back in, he holds them up like this...tie their dress like this and pin. Takes the legs and hold her up like that and shake her feet... shake the woman, her head be down this way and these other womens beholding onto her head if he drops her she won't hurt herself, the hold on to this woman and they turn her around and this man just take hold of her legs and shakes her like that, back and forth and finally that baby turnssaround and that head comes down there first. It twists that feet from not coming out first. Sometimes they find people having a baby like that. He did that to keep the legs from coming out first.

(How do they know that the feet will co e out first?)

They...when it's born they say one little feet always stick out first. Then that other feet it doesn't stick out and that's the way they found out. It be coming out that far and the feet be sticking out so the woman that doctoring got this man, that doctor them like that and say, "The feet coming out first. You all just shake her back and forth and pretty soon that baby going to twist." It come out alright. The head comes ou first.

(Where did the woman have her baby? Was there any special place she had it?)
