

Old Lady Two-Hatchet.

(That's who that Two-Hatchet creek is named after?)

Yeah, she's the old lady.

(Is she still living?)

No. She died in 1908.

(Well, in her doctoring, what kind of illnesses did she doctor?)

What?

(What kind of sickness did she doctor?)

Well, I never did call her to a case. I never seen her. But Nellie did--my wife, cause she lived close to them. She got married. She and her first husband used to live close to them. And she said she can just rub her fingers out, rub it like that and she said, "Looky here." And she spit out of her mouth a live snake. Show it to them. Little bitty live snake. And show it to all who present. "Now you all don't believe I'm a snake doctor. I'll show you where I carry it." She show it around and take it and swallow it back and still alive.

(Boy that's something!)

Yeah. She (Nellie) can show yuu, she can tell you that. She said, "I always afraid of that old lady cause I seen what she had." Now, it's impossible to believe, but that was true. She showed it to all of us.

(Well, what--did the Agent ever do anything to her for doctoring?)

No. No, I think he's just a-bluffing her. But kind of put her wise so she don't do it too much openly.

(I see. Well, did she ever do any--well, I mean did she ever just witch people?)

Uh--I didn't understand.
