

Bryce. He was here when I come here. See, the ole Washita (unin.) these Kiowa and Comanche and Phil was here when me and him (unin.) once in a while. And I think Phil is just about a year older then I am. He's about 84. (unin.) and Jim Moore is about, he was here when I came here (unin.) and there's another feller that was here when we came here, John Fur, he was my brother married his wife. And there's some of them old timers around Mountain View might tell you more then I can.

(Well, your down' O.K.)

We've seen a lot of it. Yeah, once in a while we use to have a picnic, on the Fourth of July. I remember that Mountain View we would have a picnic on the Fourth of July and people thats when taken their dinners and spread 'em out. I've seen tables, neighbors know each other, have stuff it look like a quarter of a mile. And they just invite everybody. Some old boy might be there, might not have no dinner and they invite him up and make him at home. And that was one of them. And every once in a while they watch them Indians pretty close. They'd say now we don't want them Indians, they didn't want them to get whiskey. They, if they got on the warpath they might outlaw them. They watch them Indians pretty close. And that old Big Tree I was telling you about, I seen him over in the old town. And he had them wagons with beds, and they put in a quilt or two in there and they go out to Mountain View. About two or three miles. And he'd set right flat down in that wagon and he wouldn't get out. When he wanted anyhthing, some of his folks would get it for him. I think he weighed 600 and something. We was talking about Dent told me you were going to be over here, and I got --

(Did you ever know Apache Ben? Did you ever hear of him?)

Yeah, yeah. I heard of Apache Ben. He lives down south here in Apache. Big old Apache. Now they got a regular country, it ain't what it use to be. Down byk Boon. Regular Indian village you know. Apache Ben. He was a big Indian.

(He was? Didn't he have a lot of money or something?)

I think he did. A lot of them Indians did. Now Big Tree had money. But
