

Mr. O.: 16 to 18 I think.

Mr. T.: Is she married?

Mr. O.: No.

Mr. T.: What is her source of income?

Mr. O.: I don't know really what it is, but I believe she receives a pension of some kind. I think, husband, he was a Veteran, you know.

Mr. T.: There is another house on the property then, is that it?

Mr. O.: Yes, a old house is built.

Mr. T.: Her husband built?

Mr. O.: Yeah.

Mr. T.: When was it built?

Mr. O.: Somewhere in the '50's.

Mr. T.: He built it himself?

Mr. O.: Yes. I helped build it.

Mr. T.: What about the house you live in, how old is it?

Mr. O.: Its about 20, 25 years old. Older than the other one.

Mr. T.: Did you build it?

Mr. O.: Yes sir.

Mr. T.: Did you previously have another house that burned?

Mr. O.: Yes sir.

Mr. T.: When did that house burn?

Mr. O.: Either in '60 or '61, I don't know exactly what year, but in the '60's.

Mr. T.: And after it burned you moved into this house?

Mr. O.: Yes sir.

Mr. T.: Who had been living in this house before you moved into it?

Mr. O.: My oldest daughter, my first wife, she got married and lived in there a while then she moved out.

Mr. T.: Was someone living in it at the time that you had your fire?

Mr. O.: No, it was vacant.

Mr. T.: Would you describe your property, Mr. O'Field, what is it about your property that you think is valuable, unusual, that you enjoy?
