

eyes closed and singing as loud as they could, the fox grabbed another one and stuffed it into the gunny sack. While he was singing he would tell them what to do. He would compliment them and tell them, "Close your eyes tight and lean forward while dancing. Don't look around." He would grab one as they passed by and put it in the sack. Finally one of the young turkeys-- a young female that didn't behave, that didn't listen, looked up and saw what he was doing. She looked up just as the old fox caught one of the older turkeys and put it in the sack. She screamed and said, "You people open your eyes and look. The old fox is catching us one by one and putting us in a gunny sack!" All the turkeys opened their eyes and saw that most of the older ones were gone. Everyone started hollering and ran away but the old fox already had five or six of them in the sack, and it was heavy so he couldn't chase them. When the turkeys were safe and stopped running they said, "He almost got all of us!" And the little turkey said, "If I didn't look up he WOULD have got all of us." The fox went on his way with his big dinner.

After the turkeys ran away the fox realized he was all alone. He couldn't chase them because the sack was too heavy. He had six or seven and he said, "Well, I'll eat lunch somewhere." He didn't know where. All he knew was that he was going to have large turkeys to eat.

He looked around until he came to a dump of wood and he built fire to fry the turkeys. Because the children always go to sleep before the stories are finished it is not known whether he ate alone or invited someone.

THE STORY OF A RABBIT (by Adam Le Clair)

A long time ago a rabbit lived with a bear family on the side of a mountain in a big cave.

The rabbit is a very good hunter, but the bear is so fat and lazy he stays at home, eats and sleeps all the time. The bear has a large family, his wife and 5 little bears. But the rabbit likes to hunt. He brings home all kinds of game, buffaloes and deer too.

When the rabbit comes home with game the bear would come out
