

Mrs. He has to do that, don't they?

Mr.: Another one said he broke his false teeth, he has to get his teeth fixed.

Another one said, he needed money from his lease man, he broke his glasses and he had to get new glasses. And their continuously after money from the lease man to fix their car, they need a battery, they need a tire.

Mrs.: George, tell him about this sucker that wanted to go home one night and he asked--

Mr. All right, here's another story.

Mrs. This is true stories.

Mrs. : This is true stories. Stecker Watchatah.

Mrs. Remember that?

Mr. K.: Yeah.

Mr. But anyway, what's the use of givin' his name.

Mrs. Well, that's all right.

Mr. : Anyway, years ago there use to be several taxes of jitneys as they were called back in the model-T days and this one Indian, I don't know whether I'll tell this story, this wasn't about Stecker.

Mrs. Well, go ahead with that about Stecker.

Mr.: Well, about Stecker, the story about Stecker was that there was a man here in town that had ambulance service and it was a rainy night and this fellow lived about six miles west of Apache and at that time there's a dirt road. He went down and contacted this man with the ambulance and he said my father is awful sick, he's got to go to the hospital and the Indian for the last 50 years or more has had free hospital service near Lawton. They wanted him to take him to the hospital. So the fellow got his ambulance out and this son of this supposed to be sick Indian climbed in the ambulance and went out to this father's place and he was sleeping peacefully. He wasn't sick, there wasn't a thing the matter with him. This Indian jest talked the ambulance drove into get a free ride home.

Mrs. George, the one I'd tulin' you, was when Price Woodward took Stecker home and he crawled under the house.

Mr.: This same Indian contacted a taxi to take him home and when he got home, he said,
