

From the grave.

(Oh.)

You know there's lot of Indians buried here. (There's a grave over here top (slight pause, recorder being adjusted)--by that dam over there, by that pond. There's one there. And about three or four in there on top of this hill, there's some more. And there's one grave right here where that curve cuts off in that, all over. There's lot of Indians buried and this creek everywhere all over. This creek used to be full of Indians, camping you know here and there. Long time before (not clear)--.

One time I saw it come out from that timber right straight so you could just see them grass and they was just flying up there. And they just come right straight here to the house. And I saw it. I said "I hope it come to the house, I talk to it." But instead of coming to the house got little clock in here show you what it did to it-- went right up the hill and went over the hill. The couple over here just (not clear. Next sentence not clear.) I wish it come this way but it didn't come this way. That's what the Indians call ghosts.
