

Sainday. He don't mind till he gets him. Now. That one said, "Now, maybe he's got good songs. Let's listen to him." "You listen to my song and see how you like it. You hear that song and you just gonna jump up and you will never stop!" he said. "Oh, yeah, give him that drum. Everybody join. Dance." And they all said, "My, maybe he's got a good song. Let's listen to him." Now he began to sing. See, he cheat them. He sang that "Prairie dogs, shake your tails!" That's what he sing. That's the words. He said (sings prairie dog song in Kiowa). Oh, they all began to dance up like. (Sings again) Oh, when you stop, everybody just keep on--(unintelligible phrase). "We had nice good song. We like it. Go ahead." He said, "Now I'm going to tell you this. Everybody dance and close your eyes. Shut your eyes just as tight as you could. Don't open your eyes till I tell you to open your eyes, and then you open them. Now you all got that?" "Yeah. We all going to do that." And that little one, he's dancing way over here. He's just watching him. Now, he sing again. "Now, everybody close--everybody close your (eyes)." And he's got a big tomahawk in his hand. "Now--" (Sings song again) Everybody just dancing. He hit their heads, knock them down. Kill them. He hit them with his tomahawk. He hit them, hit them. Hit them every one of them except that little one. That little one, he was opening his eyes, looking at him. "That--maybe I forgot--" That little one was just run away from him--t-t-t-t-t-t-t-- Went in a hole. Quick as he's going in a hole he-- I guess you ever heard prairie dog? Did you ever see them? Run to holes, they say, "tico-tico-tico--" like that. He said that and he went in. And that Sainday said, "Waah, I wonder how I missed her?" He stands there, stands there. "Quick as he stick his head out, I'm going to hit his head." That little prairie dog--"tico-tico-tico-tico"--he went in there. "Get away!" That's what he said. He's mad. Mad at him. And that little one said, "Sainday,