

and get me some rabbit. I want eat raw rabbit." And she said, "I don't know how to catch rabbit. They run too fast!" Oh. She said, "Get a long stick, and where there's a big tree got a hole, you put that stick up there. You feel it. If something kick up there you twist that thing like that and you pull him down." "Oh, yeah." She went and she's crying. And crying. And she was sitting by a big dry log, just sitting there. Something make a noise and she look up and there's those boys that went to war. They coming. And. . . "What's the matter, sister? What's the matter?" She said, "There's a girl, audematon, turn into bear and kill all the group except me. And she saved me. And she forces me. She always about to kill me. She told me to get some rabbit. I can't catch no rabbit. If I go home without it, she sure kill me. But I don't care if I get killed." And one of the boys said, "Come on, let's go kill something." Now they got her stick and they got one. You know how the boys are. They smart. They give it to her. And that girl was killing it. They said, "We'll watch you. We'll watch you. We'll kill that girl." "She don't get--the bullet don't go into her--the arrows don't--" "Oh, we'll get her." That's a true story now, missus.
(That's good.)

And they went. She always know it. "Are you here now?" "Yeah." "Did you bring some?" "Yeah." "Bring it here. Bring it here." She don't talk right. She just talk mean. She came. "Bring it. Look like somebody kill this rabbit for you." "Now, I kill it." "How did you kill it?" "I twist his fur down--" She just eat all the bones up. And she said, "Go get some wood and build a fire for these to cook." And these boys, they stashed to the timber. Gonna watch her just run out. They say, "We take you on." And she says, "Can I go out to the camp and get some dry meat?" "Yeah, you can." "I won't come
