

George. He just trade like he's got the cash that he wants to buy. Wagon, or harness or gun, ammunition, buggy--they sell white top hacks.

(White top what?)

White top hacks. It's--uh--let me show you what it is. I bought that hack from Benbow & Horton, harness and all. It takes the place of an automobile. It's got springs on it and the curtains roll up and when it rains, you put the curtains down and hook them up and you got a cover there and you don't get wet. And the hot sun, you raise them up and it forms the shade over your head.

(Oh, that's nice. Now, how much would an outfit like that cost?)

Well, they come complete with harness and all, $200. Well, I bought a buggy too--modern type buggy. And it's good as these--what you call roadster automobile. It's for two people you see. That's what it is--a spring buggy.

CREDITORS HAVE TO CHASE INDIANS FOR PAYMENT

(Well now, when the Indians got their payment every six months, did they go into the store to pay him?)

They don't pay. You have to chase them and get it out of them.

(Really?)

And the government headquarters is at Anadarko. And the first payment they make is to Rainy Mountain, south of Mountain View. Up at Rainy Mountain. There's an Indian school over there. Used to be. Well, they pay off one week over there. And all the Indians over there in the Kiowa county around Hobart and all around, and around Saddle Mountain and around Mountain View and all through in Gotebo. They all go in there. Everybody in this
