

Well, they had some of them that done that but seems like they didn't practice too much on that. All what they were looking for was to win their race. Quick as they got through running a race, well, they take their horse out somewhere and tie him up, because there was too many outsiders that were against that one horse. They had every way in the world that they can do to not let him go in the race he was so fast.

(Those were the good old days!)
