NOTE: (to go on title page of T-71)

Note: This interview took place at the Hog Creek Trading Post on Highway 9, west of Anadarko, run by Charles and Buth Ru Palmer. Able lived with Mary and Charles Tartsoh, whose house was located a short distance to the south of the Palmers' trading post, but he spend much of his time visiting at the post the Charles and Ruth and their customers. Anathric Charles Tartsoh and Charles Palmer were half-brothers. They had the same mother. On this tape Able tells field worker, Tim Baugh, a graduate student in Anthropology, a number of stories in Kiowal. These stories mostly concern the adventures of the trickster hero, Sainday. Only one story anath is also translated on this tape, and this English version is given by Charles Palmer who was present a during the interview. The story given below is a transcription of Charles' translation. The rest of the stories were translated a few days after the interview with Able by Evelyn Chalepah. Her translations are given in T-72 and Tr3 T-73.

Charles Palmer died the winter of 1968-69 and the Hog Creek Trading Post was torn flown shortly thereafter--J. Jordan.
