That particular Saturday morning - - well, my dad, his name is plainly speaking, he was fust plain'ly Joe Neido. He wasn't a respected man. He drinks every Saturdays, you know, whenever he gets hold of money, well that's all he want to do. And this particular Saturday morning, he drawed a couple hundred dollars and we all went to town and when we park, we lost him, - couldn't find him and we hinted all over town. Finally, I happened to cone to the car and he drove go with a colored man. dhis colored gay, he was carrying him. He was alfeady drunk. I told dad, "Where you been?" He sàys, "I been out here with , my friend." And I scen he was drunk already and I told him, "My mother's looking for you." So, when I said that, the colored guy, he got off and tbok off. When he took off, I followed him, you see. I followed him down the street about a couple of blocks. I called the cops. And thís stairway where he went up, well, there was another stairway going the other way. So, right now those cops got there and asil me why I called them and I said, "I anspicion that this guy he got dad's money. I think he rolled him." So this other guy he ran around to the other entrance there he was supposed to get out and go in this other side is the same way. So, as he was coning down he caught this colored guy, see. When he caught bim, well he held him till I got there, So, we took him down where dad was. My mother happened to come to the car too and asked him where and said, "Now, I want somey to get some groceries." Well, he seqrched around and he didn't have no money. All the money he had was $$ 25.00$ out of the two hundeed. So this colored man - no, it was this colored ging had that $$ 25.00$ and that's all he could. produce out of the two hundred. So the law asked him, "What we going to do with'this colored gay?" He said, Welí go ahead and turn him loose. I wont sign no complaint. It was own fault by going with 'him. He's. friend and I don't know whether he took it or zomebody took it. I can't prove he took it ln : Well; he gave me $$ 25.00$. So he give that all to / mother and he went in and got us groceries and went home:
