

these Indians. And they, if you catch them with the money when they get pay checks, you know, they glad to pay and they are pretty honest people. But they just like many white people, they poor manager when it comes to credit. They just over-buy. And they will not be too prompt in paying like many white people to certain extent. 'Cause there are some things they like to have, and they are very fond of eating. They I guess we all eat too much, myself too. And the doctors tells us we should reduce. But Indians are big eaters. They spend most of their money for eating. They don't spend as much money for clothes. They don't go too well dressed like they could, but they do believe in eating and feasting and spend most of money for groceries. Now some grocery stores do credit business with the Indians because these, like some white people, they'll pay grocery bill four the dry good bill because groceries they got to have every week, every month. They don't pay, they don't get no more. So they have to pay to get more. In the clothing business, they but a suit, they can wear two or three years. They don't pay, they don't care if they don't get another for a long time. So they are a little bit more prompt in pay. They do some credit business in grocery business. But I found that the Indians are good people to deal with as a whole. They are intelligence, especially the younger generation and most of 'em are, as far as I know, very honest in every way. They got Bibles like we have, and good ones. They very religious and they're all kind beliefs. Many of them now are joining in the different churches and denominations and they support the churches pretty good. And this up to us really to not to criticize that but (--) white people cause they born and raised here. And they think the best they could, I know. But for myself, I think I have
