

Marine Corp and I need a suit just to go for Sunday to church." I come here to buy a suit from you." I never forget you help me." That shows well of them the way they are appreciate and I tell you now.

(That's interesting. Fodd and water, what about that? The story you told me about your brother getting into trouble with Adam not cashin a check?)

Well, there one Indian, you know, the bank charges the Indians 25¢ for chasing checks and some no. Well, so when his--while I was out the country shop we went in a store and my brother he came in cash a $50.00 check, I guess. And he bought a pair of 25 socks. Course my brother always kinda joshing around with him. Course Indian was feeling pretty good, I don't know if he was drunk or not but he was feeling pretty good, sound that way. So, my brother kinda kid him to cash the check. Say, "You just want socks to get checked cashed, that's what you did for. kDidn't you?" So I didn't know a thing about it. Indian came into shop. Saw me and say, "Your brother made me mad." "Want to whip him." ("He say I bought the socks just to cash a check." "I don't like that kind of talk." I said, "Well, what you do if you whip him? You pay a fine and you wouldn't gain nothing." "Well, I get satisfaction out of it." I say, "Well, come in and sit down." We eat pie and coffee and be good friends." He said, "All right." He got all right. So they got their ups and downs like white people have. They just human as anybody I never--anybody else. That's way I find about 'em. They got their own language between 'em which I never learned. I should have. And as far as hope, I can praise them in good personality of course once in a while they
