

INDIAN FOODS:

(What was some of the other things they had to eat?)

Oh they, the Indians, the Indians great thing is beef. He sure like beef. And such as that. But now, they are like white people, they just buy anything they like. And these stores they got two good stores here and they carry these Indians.

(What did they eat back there besides beef?)

Well, they'd eat deer and anything they could get near get ahold of. Wild stuff, you know. And they kill deer every once in a while. They have deer season down in the reserve. So often people goes down there and hunts 'em. And I told Ben (--) after I got back down there I got to studin' and I said I ain't killed alot of stuff. I just acoming back to mind. I got to studin' I got to studyin' bout that (--) I was just a old boy. He come in here and sit right flat and maybe he was in the sun. He wouldn't be, still--had long hair. Maybe give 'em something to drink or something to eat. He just seemed like he enjoyed life. And--

INDIAN'S IN GENERAL:

(Did he--you said he had a lot of land?)

Yeah.

(And he leased it?)

Yeah, oh yea. He got--wish this country was just like it was. There ain't --

(Really?)

Yeah, you bet I liked it. And we never hear of any white man, Indian having any trouble or anything. You know they just, just like me and
