

Oklahoma. You've heard and the Rainwaters they were all friends of mama's and papa's long time ago. Old man Ken-Kee. You've heard of that name I know. Seemed to me like one of those were very prominent in politics some of the decendents of 'em were. And there was the Bacon Rind, Ba on, Rainwater, and there/s Frank Little Doctor and there's Frank Big Doctor and they were--one of these doctors that were--doctors named Frank, and one was a big man and the other was a little man. And when those Indians has to put their names on the books, you know, they had to have an Indian anme Well, one of 'em liked this big doctor and the other liked the little doctor. Now you find the Indians or should find some of 'em over at Shawnee with name of Dixie Now there's another Indian woman here, and maybe you can know something about her, I never knew her name but I met one her great grand daughters, one time She had been stolen by another tribe of Indians which was Cheyennes, I believe and taken into people that --into Wyoming. There she met a guy in Civi War, this woman did, and she was just a young girl. She said she probably bout--her granddaughter was telling 'bout this--and she said grandmother about 12 years old, guess, when she met this boy. She was pretty well grown up, you know, like some girls grow faster than others. Anyway, this boy was kinda young too, and war was over and he was going to come back and he'd heard about Oklahoma and he wanted to come back here And she wanted to come back with 'em He said he couldn't take a girl without marrying her. She said, "Well, I'll marry you if you'll live in a house Buold me a house " That's all she said, So sure enough he married her. lTheyppnowI believe that's over round Tecumsh If I'm not mistaken, it was one of the first houses there This ex-
