

which one? No it doesn't make any difference.

(Singing, mostly Mrs. McElhaney in Kiowa.)

I want to hear that, now when we get all right now Sam--these children have already had their Sunday school.

Mr. McElhaney: Our gracious Heavenly Father, as we come again, this day to study Thy word, we again ask that Thou be with us, that Thou will be in our midst. That Thou would bless those that have come. And we ask Thy blessings upon those that could not be here for various reasons. Thou knowest each and everyone. We ask Thee to be with the sick that Thou would heal their bodies. That Thou--we ask Thee to be with to be with all those that are sick. We ask in Thy holy name. Amen.

Our lesson today is one that continues, you might say, from our lessons before. Eternal life for mortal men. We have the signs, miracles that Jesus was performing in order to teach the people to understanding the ways that have been denied up through this point. God said before, the Jewish class of people, there was other, you might say well the Pharisees and Sadducees, the chief priest, it seem like they had people that were leaders in their churches. And the Bible studies that you might say that they had were according to their ideas, or to according to the way they had teachings which was more for the benefit of themselves and the organization and so forth than it was the teachings of God. And when Jesus came and started his teachings it was quite a stir among these classes because according to his teachings it didn't work out like they had been teaching. And they didn't want people to get on to that. Believe. So they had to work many ways to try to stop. Even now the plot was to kill him. So we'll see that there's many savings in these lessons and if we study them right, not only the lesson as we get it here in between. We understand what it was, and how hard it was.
