

you know. But I see him when he come back home, horseback, when they stay at Ft. Sill army. They don't use car long time. They ride horses.

(Was he older than Apache Ben?)

No, he's young.

(Oh, he is?)

My uncle's older, Apache Ben. That one has Indian name too.

My uncle, that Apache Ben.

(What was his Indian name?)

His name sé.ɪ̃.ɪ̃.dəh

(Would you say that again?)

sé.ɪ̃.ɪ̃.dəh

(What does that mean?)

Something, look like--I don't know how they call sé.ɪ̃.ɪ̃.dəh -- it's something's name. One thing I don't know, that. Something. Some kind of -- I don't know. I really don't.

(Did you ever hear where Apache Ben was born?)

No, I don't know those you know.

(If he was born around here, or if he was born--)

Yeah, I guess they live long time. I don't know where they born, my uncle, I don't know. Maybe Cement, I don't know, yet, I guess. I never know that.

(When you were a little girl, did you say you were living over at Cement?)

Uh huh, I was raised over there.

(Who--what other Apaches were living over there?)

Who?

BIG WHIP, A CAPTIVE

(What other Apaches were living over there around Cement when you were growing up?)

Cement, I just know--you know that Apache, Big Whip, you know him?

(I've hear of that name, yes.)

He married--he's got a Mexican boy. Yeah, they live across, where I played. pa.kí his name, Indian name. That old man, his name pa.kí. Yeah, I just know her. That's all his name.
