

him over, knocked him over and they killed lots of them that way. Because they in ditch under that tree, they don't know where it's from you know. So that's why they just kill them that way. Lot of them. Then they just sit there and finally at sundown, pretty near sundown - well these other people want some water, water. But these people come in there into their holes before they get in there they got shot, they fall right in there. So these folks, they want to dig that sand, when then don't find the water way down, way down, there's nothing but blood. These are men being killed. I guess their blood from there. The water just blood. But anyway they drink that water. So they just that way by sun down, why they put the fire around it - prairie fire - so nobody want to get out. They watch it, these Apache they watching, when some of them crawls around there in the grass, when the fire kind of died down in some places - why they go through there. They crawl through there. They finally, older man and woman they got out of there. And some woman, they took their baby, and some of them their baby just lay right in that hole, lay down to sleep, just like he had a good home. Sleep down there and they leave them there and they get away. Some of them says they just tear the sheet and tore it up and they choke that baby - tie him and kill him right there. She says, "I don't want my baby to be slave to these Mexicans." I don't want my baby to be slave for these Mexicans. So that's why they kill their baby. Then that night all of them got away. Way up the mountain. Then on the way there, the day they fight they found the woman had a little baby, baby that can't walk. The woman got killed laying out there. And two days afterward - they went back over there. They looked around. They found the lady laying out there and the baby was still all right. Nothing wrong with the baby. Because this baby just crawl around, just play around there, they go back at night and nurse - that dead mother. So two days they found now. Then this other man, another old man, they took